

COLORED FOLKS TAKEN BY POLICE

Four Men and Three Women Arrested in Raid Last Evening—Ordered to Leave City.

Seven colored people, three women and four men, a player-piano and a little booze was the cause of much merriment in the house located at the southwest corner of Pleasant and Linn streets last evening.

People walking by the place admitted that the music was great and that there was plenty of it, and the colored folks themselves admitted to Police Chief Champior, this morning that the music was fine and that all of them held a dance.

However, the neighbors decided that they would like a little sleep, and not being able to get any while the piano was in action, notified the police, and three officers raided the place.

Four colored men and three negro women were hustled into the patrol car and taken to the station. It was a rude way to break up a party, according to the women, and they were not allowed to state their names.

Chief Champion held a conference with City Attorney Roger Cunningham this morning and it was decided to let the people free providing they would leave Janesville. The whites and coloreds would get out on the first train and would stage their next party far from Janesville.

HEARD FROM OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

First Sergeant Maurice Weirick.

"Germans, France, Nov. 23, 1918.—This letter I'm writing to you in accordance with the request that we all write letters to our dads on Sunday, the 24th.

"I'm writing it to night, however, because I'm afraid I won't have time tomorrow. Of course this will have to do for mother, too.

"Well, to begin with, the censorship has been lifted, so I'm going to tell you in brief outline what we've been doing this last summer. The first I arrived back from my leave the other day and find that we are busier now than when we used to be at the front.

"We are about a mile from the old city of Langres.

"Now to my story. After leaving England we landed in Havre, France. From there we went to a little town called Roubaix.

"We were there about two weeks getting ready and then departed for the Toul Sector.

"We went into the line there directly in front of Mont Sere about the 15th of August.

"We stayed on that front, which was comparatively quiet, about six weeks and then pulled out and rested about a week, and then on the 14th of September we went to the St. Mihiel Sector at Pont-a-Mousson. We held the line there in comparative quiet for about three weeks and then hell broke loose.

"A big drive opened we had the pivot end of the salient and took two towns, Norroy and Vandieres. These Hun pot cards I sent you were cards picked up in Norroy. We had a lot of Hun souvenirs there, including beer, rabbits and preserved fruit, not to mention shells.

"Well we stayed in the line for about several days and were then relieved. However, the worst was yet to come. We moved and camped in the woods and mud for a month. Our way toward the front was usually a fight with American troops have been in over here, the Argonne Forest.

"We went in on Sunday night, Oct. 6th, I think, and never came out until the 26th, and it was 23 days of hell.

"We got shells and machine gun fire steadily but you should have seen our boys walk through them. You can see sure but we were glad when we got out of there.

"We had been out only a few days when the armistice was signed and then we did rejoice.

"Our old battalion is back together and now we're sure working hard.

"We are all speculating as to when we will get home. The consensus of opinion is that it will be soon, but none of us know. We seem to be working south now, hiking, but don't know where we are going.

"Wallace is O. K. and so am I, out of having a few cooties. Well I have you an outline of our experience over here, but I'll have to tell you the story when I get home.

"Maurice Weirick, "First Sargt., Co. C, 30th Field Signal Battalion."

Private P. Nohr, A. E. F., has written to his parents in America. He tells of meeting old friends by chance. His letters, two in number, follow:

"Somewhere in France, Nov. 2, 1918.—I got your welcome letter a few days ago but have been rather busy and didn't have time to write, but was going to write last night. Then another fellow and I were coming up from supper and he asked me to tell them that he was looking fine and feeling good as ever. I am still running a roller. I have now got a new Buffalo Springfield; just unloaded it a few days ago.

"The weather around here isn't very cold, but it is cloudy most of the time and it rains a little once in a while. I met a fellow today who used to work on Beloit for the White Construction Company. Well I don't know of anything new except war news and I suppose you know all about that.

"We also have a Red Cross here and they serve hot chocolate and give us cigarettes and daily papers free every day. They certainly have done a lot for the boys over here. I feel a lot better about the best of health and well you all are the same. Your son, "Private Henry P. Nohr."

"Co. K, 23d Engineers, American Expeditionary Forces."

"November 17th, 1918.—Today is Sunday and we didn't have to work. It is the first Sunday we haven't had to work for some time. I got your letter yesterday. That certainly must have been some letter in Minnesota, but don't think it will look near as bad as this country does. In a number of towns nothing is left but a few ruins. That is those that have been in artillery fire and air raids.

"A great number of fields are all full of shell holes and barbed wire entanglements, and there are no good places to stay. Haven't had very good places to stay, but will soon have better places to live in. They are now building barracks, since there is no danger of air raids.

"I suppose that Al is glad these gassers Sunday are over so he can go joy-riding again.

"We now have a Y. M. C. A. here where we can buy chocolates and cookies and such things."

"Private Henry P. Nohr."

Mrs. T. A. Pritchard, Evansville, has received a letter from her son, Private Herbert Pritchard of Co. F, 28th Infantry, a former Co. M, boy. The letter is mostly taken up with the life of the French people and the interesting of France. It should be interesting as Private Pritchard was a former Janesville boy. His letter follows:

"November 25, 1918.—Well today is Monday and it's a very busy day. I am going to tell you all about my trip and the battles as I have been in them. The first town I landed in was called Baccot, the name of Baccot and went to an odd camp made in Napoleon's time. They had barracks there and it was quite a nice place, but we stayed there only one day. Then we went to a town called Ligny. Then our company was broken up and all us privates were transferred to the first division and that was a march of about fifteen miles. There we found out that this division in each company, so we are all in the same battalion but in four different companies. But we were practically all together anyway. We stayed at a hotel for about a week. This is where we met our new division, near Toul, and it was quite a nice place, but it was more of a fatigue camp. We were expected to go into the trenches but did not. We were relieved by another outfit. So we went in trucks and about, also on trains. The cars are very small with a capacity for about forty people or eight horses. Well I guess we traveled for two or three days and got off and camped in a town I always called the map town, for I can't recall the name. Then we were in French farmers' barns with lots of hay to sleep on. I kept next to Earl Smith. He was in the same squad as I am in, and that was the old show squad. I was first helper and he was second. We were there for about a month and a half. We kept going in and out of the trenches all the time. The first time I was in eight days, and they seemed like months. But, after all, I got used to it all and did not mind it a bit. After we were there for a month and a half we left our blankets and took nothing but our light kit along with us and went into it again. This time it was something different from our holding a trench, for we went over the top and took a town called Cambray. We also held it. They made seven counter attacks on us in the meantime, but we were too much for them.

"We only stayed four days this time and then came out for four days. We then pulled stakes again. Suppose you read of it in the paper. It was the first town the Americans took and our partition was the one that took the lead; that was the 28th Infantry. We were there for two months, then we went to a place called Villers Torrel, and all we did there was hold the line and go on big raids and fatigue parties. The next big drive we were in was at Soissons, and it sure was one. We went up in trucks and got on the line the 25th of July and went over. We were not in the lead all the time, but once in a while. We drove 15 kilometers the first day and we stayed five days. We got lots of prisoners and guns and also captured lots of towns. The place we stayed was at Long point, and it was long, too. We were relieved the fifth day and went back to a woods and got our division together again, or rather what was left of it, and took trucks out of there, and we were not sorry, either, for it was hell. Then we had a feed. That was the first good feed we had in five days. We rode two days in trucks and then we got on the train and came back to a big camp just eleven kilometers from Toul. I was there for four days and they gave out passes. Rob Woodward and I got one for 24 hours and went to Toul and stayed all day and night. That is where I met Paul Mable and went out where he was staying in Nancy. Then Paul, Rob and I came back to the 'Y' at Nancy and stayed until our train came for Toul. When we got to Toul we got a bed and started the next day for camp. Rob and I walked every step of the way. We were sure tired, too. When we came back the company they were drilling, so we went out to drill. My rupture began to hurt me that day, and so the next day I went over to the doctor and he sent me to field hospital 325. I stayed there three days. I had an exciting time for almost every night the aeroplanes were there with their bombs. I got out of there and was sent to base hospital 42, and there I stayed for two weeks. Then I got out of the war all together and went to base hospital 67. I was operated on the 27th of August.

"I spent my birthday in the first hospital 42. After I was operated on I stayed in bed nine days, with a good nurse to take care of me. I got up the next day and was so weak I could not do much so I remained for about three weeks. From there I was sent to another base hospital, No. 1. They brought us in trucks and here I am here. I am now. The reason I am here here is a fellow is not supposed to do much with a rupture until it heals good, so they gave me a job at a return home and still at it. Am going to work at noon again.

"Everything works fine. I guess we will be home before long, and won't be a bit sorry either, for I feel as though I have done my part. "Private Herbert Pritchard, "Co. C, 28th Infantry, A. E. F., Via New York."

Mrs. Gus Schmidt, 525 South High street has received a letter from her brother, Paul Vogel. In his letter Paul states that he has arrived at the Embarkation hospital at Hoboken, New Jersey, with two wounds received in action at Chateau Thierry on the 13th day of July. His description of the battle he participated in is a most vivid one. He was a former Co. M boy. He says that in a short time he expects to be back again in Wisconsin. His letter follows:

Dec. 19, 1918. Thought I would drop you a few lines to let you know that I am back in the good old U. S. A. Arrived the 8th of December at 4:00 p. m. Had a very bad trip, we were on the Atlantic 18 days and we were to cross it in ten days. You can imagine how bad the weather was. On our way across we had to stop at the Hazard Islands about 1300 miles off the coast of France. I have a picture of the Hazard Islands which I will show you when I return home. When we pulled into the harbor we had to go up the Hudson river and up to the Pier.

There were two bands and also two boats with men, fire works on it to come out and greet us, and there were also about fifty ferry boats to meet us and every whistle in New York city and Hoboken were blowing, and all the bells were ringing. You can imagine what kind of cheering we got coming in. They say we were the only boys to receive a good cheer. I saw a boat pull in the morning after we did and they had only a little fireworks. We sailed on an American Red Cross ship. It is called the Comfort. The Comfort was the boat that took General Pershing to France. We are sure in a good hospital but don't think I will be here over a month and then expect I will get sent to the nearest hospital to my home. I think I may get a chance to go to Milwaukee.

New York City is just across the Hudson river from Hoboken so I guess I will have to see all I can before leaving for Wisconsin. Well I guess I will explain to you how I got wounded. This is the second time I have been wounded, the first hospital I went to was Bowery, France. The second time I went to Paris. I got wounded up at the Mont Aldin front the first time. We got to our objective all right and when I commenced to dig in I was protected from machine gun fire, but just as luck happened to be a big shell lit in back of me and a piece of it hit me in the back; that's how I got my first wound. I was in the hospital for six weeks at that time, and I came out of the hospital and went back to my company for duty. I was with the company for about a week when they rushed us up to the Chateau Thierry front. We went up there, about twenty miles this side and camped in a wood for about two days. One night we received orders to pack up and get ready to start for the front, so we started out and on the way it started to rain, lightning and thunder. It got so dark that I could not see the fellow in front of me and the only way I could keep from walking on him, was to hold my hand out and keep touching him on the back, so you can imagine how dark it was. We got there 4:20 in the morning and went over the top. I mean opened our fire. I happened to be quite lucky that morning and pulled the rough without a scratch. The next day we went over the top at 6:30 p. m. I went about one hundred yards and a bullet hit me in my left eye.

After I "came through," I saw my corporal laying in front of me. He was wounded in the right leg, but was able to handle himself. My leg was broke and I had to wait until an ambulance came and got me.

I said to the corporal, "Let's dig a little hole with our bayonets. It will help to protect us from machine gun fire." I had not any more spoke to him than I got hit in the left shoulder. A fellow came along just then and the corporal happened to know him and he asked him if there was anything he could do for us. I told him that he could dress my wounds to keep me from losing too much blood, so he dressed my wounds and also dug a hole for me so that I wouldn't get hit again. I laid there all night and finally about six o'clock in the morning an ambulance came along and rushed me to the hospital. When I ended up I was in Paris. I stayed there for three and a half months. I had lots of friends there that were good to me. I never saw any nurses or doctors that were as good as they were in No. 1 hospital.

But I sure am glad to be home again and there is one thing I am proud of that is my wound. I am not a bit sorry that I got wounded on the fields of France and one thing that all the boys that have been in this battle can be proud of and that is that we fought in and won the BIGGEST BATTLE IN THE HISTORY OF THE WORLD.

And one thing that I can always remember that the Janesville boys and I were in the first drive the American troops made in the fields of France, that was the 28th of May when we captured Cambray. Here I am in Hoboken and New York City just across the river.

THE TWENTY-THIRD.

There is a superstition attached to the number 23. It is called the "Skid-deo" number and in parlance of the street means "Get busy!" Tomorrow night is Christmas eve, and Christmas eve means much wherever the cause of Christianity has spread. It is nearly two thousand years ago that the shepherds watching on the hills of Bethlehem saw that star of Bettle-hem and knew the Messiah had been born, according to the Scriptures.

Nineteen hundred and eighteen years after this wonderful event in the history of the world we have come upon a new celebration and the world is once again re-born as it were, under promise of the Bible and its teachings, and with that event horrifying of ages is but in the background while we celebrate the new-born and good will to man.

We have conquered the foe, we have won the great fight and now we must reap the harvest of peace. We have been recognized by the nations of the world, not only dominant in the western hemisphere, but also powerful in influence in the east. Today is the zenith of our glory.

But the 23rd means something. Are you ready for Christmas? If not, why not?

HOUSING PROPOSITION.

While we are discussing this housing proposition there are many people coming to Janesville to make their homes that can not find accommodation. People who have been accustomed to homes with modern conveniences, flats, with gas and electric light and steam heat, and they can not understand why Janesville does not have such places at their disposal.
This housing proposition is going to be a serious one at best and the quicker it is solved the better. Men who are married and come here to work, wish to bring their wives and families with them. If they do not they can be classed as transients. If they find no places for their accommodation they will not tarry here.
Persons having rooms, flats, houses, apartments to run, furnished or unfurnished, can well afford to advertise the fact and list them with the "Chamber of Commerce." Even if the citizens of Janesville do not fully realize it, houses are going to be at a premium for a long time. The "Chamber of Commerce" is doing what it can in this direction, but citizens with renting property should be alive to the situation and place their structures in the line for use by the advance guard of the future citizens who arrive every day.

WILL EDUCATION PAY?

Recent years have seen a great reaction from old-fashioned book education, and the demand now is for young people who shall be efficient in business. In many ways this reaction was necessary. Yet it must not go so far that young people will not care for general intelligence.

It is certainly upsetting to an ambition man, when he finds that a first-class mechanic earns more than the average school teacher, or minister, or professional writer. Why spend years in study, when he can earn more by perfecting himself in some form of shop practice?

It is a pretty serious matter if the present demand for skilled mechanics shall lead our young people to ignore the value of high school and college education. Fortunately, most men who make good pay as mechanics have common sense and realize the value of education. They want their children to have more of it than the older generation had. So it is hardly likely that our high schools and colleges will be depopulated.

The country will suffer, however, if it fails to provide an adequate return to brain workers, to intelligent and educated people who have spent time and money in acquiring knowledge, and fitting themselves to be better citizens. But educated people must do their share in making themselves fit for active participation in life.
Education must do something more than develop their critical and analytic faculties.

Many men have developed through book study an exceedingly cultivated power of observation. They are refined, penetrating students of life, can discuss charmingly and give sound judgments on any subject. But they can't do anything. The power of initiative was left out of their education. That kind of training is not fitted to modern life.

THE WAGES OF SIN.

That Muskegon man charged with murder of his "Gypsy" sweetheart, paid the penalty of the relentless justice that follows all evil-doers, ending his life, as he did, when the coils of the law were slowly but surely tightening about his neck, is a confession of his guilt, and the public is saved the details of his trial and the cost of his execution later on. The wages of sin is death and too many pay the penalty for acts which they did not count the cost when committed.

Is it unfortunate that when the local police authorities pick up some strangers who are violating the federal laws and then are taken to the federal court at Madison for trial and conviction they are credited as citizens of Janesville, as happened last Saturday, when even Howard, a well known bank robber, was cradled as being a resident of this city when, as far as known, he had never been here but a few days in his life.

A few more clear-cut and concise speeches on the peace proposition like Senator Lodge's, and Wilson will wish he had not gone to Europe. Of course it is barely possible that with the cables closed and under federal (which means administration management) control, that it will not be until the mails reach the European capitals that its full purport will be understood. It was a wonderful speech, both timely and straight to the point.

Secretary Glass, in one of his first recommendations to congress, asked the consideration of the construction of a postoffice. You remember building stopped during the period of the war, so Glass believes that the patriotic spotters of the administration should be given an opportunity before it is too late.

Everything apparently has resumed its normal pre-war average except the prices, and they seem to forget the war is over. When a dollar will not buy a pound of butter and a dozen eggs, it is a problem of making two and two stretch themselves into six to make both ends meet.

Have you stopped to think what a large number of our own Rock county boys are going to celebrate their Christmas within the German lines this year? It will be something for them to look back upon with pride for the remainder of their lives.

Every ship arriving from foreign shores is bringing back its toll of sounded Americans, some minus eyes, arms, legs or otherwise disfigured and crippled, but all of them glad to be home again, and know their personal sacrifices were not in vain.

What is needed more than anything else right now in Janesville is a declaration of peace between certain warring elements and a concerted action on the part of everyone, with but one thought: "A successful city develops enough glory to everyone."

Janesville should be proud of the record it made for itself in the recent Red Cross drive. In fact, in every war activity campaign this city and Rock county as a whole have been well to the fore.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY E. MOULTON

SOME DAY.

When the mountain streams no longer find the parched and thirsty land,

When the sun bathes not the gray
immortal hills,

When the ocean waves no longer race
each other off the strand,

When the looms at last are silent
in the mills,

When the gentlemoon no longer sheds
its soft and filmy rays,

When the church bells in the valley cease to ring,

When the calendar no longer marks
the passing of the days,

When the purple lilacs bloom no
more in spring,

When the bob-o-link no longer sings
his song unto his mate,

When the pleasant voice of nature
has been stilled,

When the universe has passed into a paralytic state

It is then the ult consumer will be thrilled.

Then that famous day,
Throughout the town,
We'll hear that cost of Living has come down.

Beats all how many old-fashioned folks there are about. A Jersey man was run over by a bicycle the other day.

Have just come into possession of a box of strike-on-the-box matches which is labeled, "War Quality. Made a war with one of those matches, not even a cigaret.

There are a number of ways to be happy in this world without trying to tell Woodrow how to run his affairs.

quired by the authorities, which leads

What might be described as a flying start is recorded by the Mendon (Ill.)
"Dispatch" as follows: "It is a coincidence that both the bride and the groom are the heads of families, each having three children, so they have a nice family to begin with."

Sombody's attempt to get dried milk to the "starving babies in Germany" reminds me of the following dialogue:

"Hill, John. How is your dog?"

"My name ain't John, and I ain't got no dog."

There never were no "starving babies in Germany," either.

JANE VIVIAN.

Villa's end is in sight at last. He is going to start a newspaper.

There seems to be a deal of bother about what part the congress is going take in peace negotiations. Is not the real House in France already?

If Peru and Chile try to start a new war we move they be locked up on a tentative charge of disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace.

Woodrow seems to be getting his place in The Sun right along.

THE GREATER PRIDE

The laughter's coming back to life,
The light returns to weary eyes
Above the tumult and the strife.
The songs of merry children rise.
And as a man that long has toiled,
And reached his chosen goal at last,
Looks back with honor still unsoiled Across the miles that he has passed
And finds his struggles all worth while,
So shall our nation rest and smile.

We come to peace without regret.
We reached our goal without deceit.
Evil and shame, we faced, and yet
We played the man and not the cheat.

The victory we sought we earned,
We kept good faith with God and men.
When hate unto our souls was burned,
We clung to honor, even if it maimed.

We stood with bodies bruised and
maimed
Heads high, hands clean and unashamed.

With fifty vice we came to grips
And still refused to stoop to sin
No blasphemy has stained our lips
We have not played the brute to win.

We've fought the bitter fight and left
No scarlet shame along our trail,
No mother, of her babe bereft.
Of us relates a cruel tale,
We have this boast: Our sons have died
Rather than sacrifice their pride.

Above the victory, we've gained.
Above the peace that we have made
Our glorious banner flies undimmed,
Untarnished is our shining blade.
And this unto the end of time Shall be our brightest gem of fame.

That we have, fought with sin and crime
And still refused to stoop to shame.
To reach fair freedom's far-flung goals.

We did not sacrifice our souls.

Statue Vines.
Chinese gardeners sometimes plant statuettes of tiny men firmly in pots, just like real plants, and then train live evergreens to grow up over these statuettes. The vines thus form a kind of robe for the statuette men, their white faces and hands protruding from the green leaves.

"BEFORE AND AFTER TAKING" A LESSON IN NEAR EAST RELIEF

Amena, one of the 400,000 orphans in the Near East, was wandering in the streets of her ruined city in the tattered boy's clothing of the "before taking" picture when she was picked up by a relief worker. She has been placed in one of the orphanages being put up for the thousands of fatherless, motherless, friendless children by the American Committee for Relief in the Near East.

Amena's father was tied to the tail of a horse and dragged to death and the little daughter was left to pick up her food, literally from the street, and to find some food between buildings where she might sleep. From this life of hiding and doubtless stealing, whenever she could, there probably came the expression of precocious cunningness in the first picture. The influence of love and kindness with which she has come in contact have brought back the natural childish charm of the "after-taking" picture.

Do not imagine that Amena's case is a rare one or even that every such child can be taken to care and shelter as soon as discovered. Too often the relief worker must look the other way.

A recent cable to the committee says: "The heroic men and women who have strained every energy to save lives have now the task of picking out those who shall perish." It is that they shall not perish that the committee for Relief in the Near East is asking the public to give $30,000,000 in January. A very important part of this committee's work is to establish orphanages, as many as funds permit, wherever possible.

"Slicker" and "Slacker"

By EVA MAY GUTHRIE

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

Bryce Dalziel was a slicker, knew it and traded on his vast experience as a confidence man, camouflaged as a promoter. Many were his victims and no sooner was one disposed of than he went on a hunt for a new one.

Nat Dover was a slacker. When his country came into the war his one thought was to keep out of it. A trivial physical imperfection enabled him to just graze the medical examination board. He was told by one of its members that there were minor military lines where he might volunteer, but there was nothing voluntary in Nat so far as fighting was concerned.

Bryce Dalziel heard of Nat and spotted him "an easy mark." Being made aware of the shifty, craven characteristics of Nat, he based upon that knowledge a clever scheme to work him for all he was worth.

Alan Drury was a patriot. That was why he was one of the first to enlist. If he felt regretful to leave his native land it was when he thought of Alice Lisle. She was charming to everybody, was Alice, and Alan fancied when he called upon her regularly once a week even after he had gone to camp. She was manifestly proud of his soldierly bearing, the serjeanty he had won, and when Nat came around the comparison of the latter with Alan placed Nat in very subordinate estimation.

"I've got out of the war," this interesting specimen of humanity soliloquized. "That's my big advantage. It's plain to be seen that the khaki and gilt buttons catch Alice, but that will wear away when Drury goes away. I'll not be precipitate, I'll keep up pleasant social relations with the Lises. Then when the field is clear I'll have Alice all to myself."

But as the days went on Nat began to get uneasy. From what he heard Alan and Alice were all but engaged. This set him thinking. One day he cornered Mr. Lisle.

"Something I'd like to talk to you about," announced Nat. "It's Alice."

"Yes?" said Mr. Lisle in his quiet way.

"I hear she and Drury are likely to make a match of it. Now I'm a plain man. I think a good deal of Alice and I'm able to support a wife in good style. I'm going to tell you something confidential—my father left me $10,000."

"I heard so," nodded Alice's father. "I've a chance to double it, quadruple it. In fact I've got a big chance. Here's what I was thinking: If I married Alice I'd buy the old Hazard place adjoining yours and we'd settle down there. That would give us the best and biggest farm outfit in the county."

Mr. Lisle said nothing, but Nat saw that he was impressed. He left the house to work. Meanwhile he met Dalziel daily. The latter had a room at the local hotel and daily Nat would be in close consultation with the plausible young man, who had deftly enmeshed him in a specious scheme that dazzled the avaricious slacker.

"Well, the mine is ready to be fired," asserted Dalziel one particular day. "Seen your men?" questioned Nat with ill concealed eagerness.

"I have. You see they represent the most powerful political ring in the state. They've cornered a contract with the government to supply nearly a million gas masks. They are splitting it up, so much to the people furnishing the factory, so much to the subcontractor. I've figured our share. As we get three prices from good old Uncle Sam, our profits in the first big dividend will be over $200,000."

"You're sure we can get the contract?" asked Nat.

"Can't miss. The ring wants only their initial percentage. We deal with a dummy contractor. Why, the first advance the government makes is over half a million," and Dalziel fairly showered Nat with bewildering figures, glowing details, references to concerns Nat knew about which had gone into munitions and from a little blacksmith shop had expanded into immense plants.

"I'd better go down to the state capital and get the thing fixed tomorrow," suggested Dalziel.

"Oh, by all means," urged Nat. "I'll have to pay the ring fellows their percentage in cash. Have you got the money?"

"All ready for you," answered Nat readily. "Be careful of that roll—it's my ten thousand—all I've got in the world."

"You'll be rolling in thousand-dollar bills in a few months," cheered the witty tempter.

About all Nat did for the next few days was to figure out those promised enormous profits. Then he began to get impatient, as there was no word from Dalziel; then alarmed. At the end of a week he went down to the state capital, to find no trace of Dalziel, and to learn that the gas mask contract was a mythical illusion.

Wary, a pauper, feeling the slacker that he was, returning to his home town after dark, he passed the Lisle home, to find it all lighted up. He paused to listen to the conversation of two men outside. He passed on with a groan as he caught the words: "Yes, Alan and Alice are giving an engagement party. They are to be married before our brave soldier lad goes over there."

AMUSEMENTS

NOTICES FURNISHED BY THE THEATRES.
APOLLO.

Tonight and tomorrow a picture of the big Canadian woods, "Nine-Tenths of the Law," featuring Mitchell Lewis, is being offered.

In An Enchanted Garden. So far as visual delight is concerned there is an enchanted garden in "A Japanese Nightingale," the new Pathé Extra-Selected Star photoplay, featuring Fannie Ward, which will be shown at the Apollo theatre on Christmas day. It is of a beauty which has evoked spontaneous expressions of wonder and admiration; and even experienced travelers could not believe at first, that they were not looking upon some floral paradise in the land of the Mikado.

The location is on the Pacific coast, where a millionaire man of dreams, by the magic of a bottomless purse, has been able to have a section of Japan picked up and transported to his estate. Real Japanese players add to the fidelity of the story and Miss Ward, as Yuki, the heroine, has done the most poetically dramatic work of her career. All in all, it is a great love story, an exquisite picture and a triumph of emotional portrayal.

An additional attraction on Christmas day will be a fine depicting of the surrender of the German fleet, the greatest dramatic naval event in history.

LUTHERAN CHURCH AT HANOVER WILL HOLD USUAL CELEBRATION

Xmas will be celebrated in the usual manner by the Lutheran church at Hanover, for Xmas eve, Tuesday, December 24th, a very elaborate program has been worked out by the pastor, the Rev. P. Felton, and much time and hard work devoted to make its presentation as instructive and enjoyable as possible. Through the addition of the Junior Choir to the musical forces of the church, it was possible to make the program more varied and pleasing than ever before.

Besides the usual singing of carols by the Sunday School, which has always been an enjoyable feature, the Junior Choir will render four selections and one in conjunction with the school. Miss Emma Borkenhagen will sing "The Song is Ringing Still" and "Silent Night," while the Misses Irene Schumann and Lena Borkenhagen will render a duet, "O Little Town of Bethlehem." There will also be numerous appropriate recitations. A silver offering will be taken for the benefit of the mission among the Stockbridge Indians in Northern Wisconsin. This service begins at 8 o'clock.

On Xmas day the birthday of the Saviour will be celebrated in German service at 10:30 a. m. and in English service, together with Holy Communion at 2:30 p. m. The congregation extends a hearty invitation to the community to worship the new-born King with it, at all its services.

JAMES PLACED UNDER THE BOARD OF CONTROL

Hugh James, an Evansville youth charged with stealing an automobile, was sentenced to three years under the State Board of Control, by Judge Maxfield, in the municipal court this morning.

James admitted taking the car, but proved to the court that he did not intend to steal it, and his record in Evansville being very good he was put under the supervision of the State Board of Control.

William Carl was taken before the judge to answer a charge of non-support. He entered a plea of not guilty and his examination was set for Friday morning at ten o'clock. He was held under $1,000 bail.

JESSE LONG FOUND NOT GUILTY TODAY

Jesse Long of Hickman, Ky., who was taken into custody last Tuesday charged with stabbing Lawrence Wendorf of Edgerton at the new motor plant was arraigned before Judge Maxfield this morning and was found not guilty of the assault.

Long in telling his story to the judge admitted that he had stabbed Wendorf but stated that the victim had been in the habit of abusing him and that he simply acted in self defense. Martin Kinney another worker at the plant testified to the fact that Wendorf had been bothering the boy.

Long has been working his way since he was nine years old and was dismissed this morning after listening to a little fatherly advice from Judge Maxfield.

CHAPTER VIII.

She failed to run Duane to earth in the telephone book. She was at a loss for another source of directions. She was new to New York and did not know how to set out on such a pursuit.

She went to her room, and found her mother there, dismally engaged in writing a letter to her father, breaking to him the dreadful news that the tressouneau was to cost far more for far less. She was asking for extra money at once. Daphne smiled bitterly and said: "Rub it out and do it over again, mamma. There ain't goin' to be no tressouneau. No wedding bells for me!"

Mrs. Kip rolled large eyes in Daphne's direction and looked deaf. Daphne held out her denuded engagement finger in proof that she and Clay were betrothed.

"Good gracious!" was Mrs. Kip's profane comment. "Why on earth did you—"

"Because I'm too expensive for him," "What are you going to do—go back to Cleveland and tell everybody that you're not going to get married, after

For Itching Torture

There is one remedy that seldom fails to stop itching torture and relieve skin irritation and that makes the skin soft, clear and healthy.

Any druggist can supply you with zemo, which generally overcomes all skin diseases. Acne, eczema, itch, pimples, rashes, blackheads in most cases give way to zemo. Frequently, minor blemishes disappear overnight. Itching usually stops instantly. Zemo is a safe, antiseptic liquid, clean, easy to use and dependable. It costs only 35c; an extra large bottle, $1.00. It will not stain, is not greasy or sticky and is positively safe for tender, sensitive skins.

Resinol

the tested skin treatment

"Resinol is what you want for your skin-trouble—Resinol to stop the itching and burning—Resinol to heal the eruption. This gentle ointment has been so effective for years in treating eczema, ring worm, itching, burning rashes, and sores, that it has become a standard skin treatment. It contains nothing that could irritate the tenderest skin."

Your druggist will also tell you that Resinol Ointment is excellent for relieving the smart, itch, and burn of mosquito-bites, and insect-stings. It soothes and cools skins burned by wind or sun. All dealers sell Resinol Ointment.

all this trouble?" "No, I'm not going back to Cleveland, and I am going to get married—but later, much later."

"I hate conundrums," said Mrs. Kip. "Better tell me the answer, for I won't guess. What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to lend a hand," said Daphne. "Do my share. Get a job and earn my board and keep."

"Heaven help us! You've gone crazy!" Mrs. Kip exclaimed. "You get to bed and you'll feel better in the morning. I'll finish my letter."

She added, unbeknownst to Daphne, a postscript as long as the letter, contradicting all she had just written and urging her husband to come East at once and take charge of his unruly daughter. She dropped it in the mail chute, and it fell into a bottomless pit, along with her other hopes.

Daphne and her mother were uneasy at the prospect of the breakfast encounter with the bridal couple. There had been a sense of strain the first morning. But now a bitter quarrel had intervened—that first ugly quarrel when the wedge of finance is driven between united hearts.

Bayard and Lella, however, arrived at the table all smiles, more amorous than ever. Lella wore a triumphant smile, such as Dillah must have worn the second time she went out walking with her big beau.

It was plain to the anxious eyes of Mrs. Kip and Daphne that Lella had emerged from the quarrel with all the loot and aggravated power.

She had taken advantage of her husband's trust and abused his generosity recklessly, with no more evil motive, indeed, than the wish to beautify herself in his honor, and yet with recklessness.

It was not altogether Lella's fault if the lesson she learned, perhaps unconsciously, from the combat was something like this:

"I ran my husband into debt without consulting him. His listless love woke from its torpor and enchanted me with a first-class demonstration of its energy. He stormed. I wept thrillingly. He apologized, begged to be permitted to bring me some more nice things. Ergo, when home life grows dull, I can always stir up the fire by buying something we can't afford."

When I want anything I must get it. I shall be scolded, then kissed and treated with awe. If I hadn't bought it I wouldn't have had it, nor the bonus that goes with it. If we had not quarreled we should have missed the capture of 'making up.'"

This is one of the first lessons that certain sorts of husbands teach to certain sorts of wives.

When the man of the house had departed for his office, and the waiter had carried off the breakfast relics, the three women were left alone in a completely feminine conclave. They faced life like three Norns: the old mother, the new wife, and the deferred wife, each from her column of disadvantage.

The two married women turned on the maid, with common resentment. They were married and dependent and she had her independence. They were Tories and she a Whig. It was their privilege to rail at things as they were, but it was their religion to frown on changing them. Mrs. Kip senior spoke for Mrs. Kip junior.

"Now, Daphne, tell us what is this new foolishness all about?"

Daphne answered, stoutly: "It's not foolishness. It's the first glimmer of sense I've ever had. I'm sick of the idea of always living on the mercy of some man, taking his charity or his extravaganza. I've always been a drag on poor daddy, and I was getting ready to shift my weight over to poor Clay's back. But I don't think a woman ought to be dependent on a man. I think she ought to bear her share of the burden."

"As if she didn't!" Mrs. Kip broke out. "As if the home weren't just as much labor as the office."

Lella attacked her from another direction. "For goodness' sake, Daphne, don't lose your head. Don't you imagine for a moment that a husband will be happier and love his wife better because she earns wages. The harder you work for men, the better they like somebody else. The harder a man works for you the better he likes you. Best of all, he loves the woman that tries to break him."

Daphne's answer was a snappy: "I don't believe it! I'd despise a man that felt that way."

The three women wrangled with wise saws and modern instances, and they were in a perilous state of dissension when the telephone rang. Lella answered it and her outcries of indignation alarmed Mrs. Kip and Daphne till they learned the cause.

Bayard had called up to say that the luncheon party must be postponed. Outrageous business had made another insidious attack on love.

Lella came from the telephone in a state of desperation mitigated by the fact that Bayard had asked her to take his mother and Daphne shopping and buy them and herself something worth while as an atonement for his abandonment.

So they set forth again on another onset against the ramparts of beauty.

To the silent horror of Daphne and her mother, Lella was persuaded to buy a new coat and a new hat and to pay for them by the convenience of opening two new accounts at the suggestion of two soap salesmen. Bayard's surrender after his first battle had already accomplished the expectable result.

Everything was the very latest thing and yet was marked down. But Daphne priced things now with a new soul. She was thinking in the terms of wages and toil.

She was going to earn fifty thousand a year some day, but she supposed that at first she would earn very little—twenty-five dollars a week, perhaps.

For the first time in her existence she vividly understood how all these fairy tissues were the products of human labor, paid for with wages and to be sold for other wages. Pearls were drops of sweat; perfumes were the sighs of weary men; soft fabrics were the hard spinning of human silkworms.

Bayard was even now racking his brain to accumulate what three women were squandering.

So Daphne meditated as she had never meditated before and might not often meditate again. She refused to buy a thing. Her mother could only explain her mood as a symptom of an illness and advise her to get home to bed. There was something suspicious to the condition of a girl who could look with quivens of conscience or appetite on such a banquet.

At length fatigue and faintness reminded Mrs. Kip, senior, that she had not eaten and the hour was late. She called for her luncheon and they went together to a tearoom. Here Daphne had another attack of eccentricity; a stubborn determination to go home and send back to Dutilh the wicked gown that she had bought of him on credit.

She had left the house without returning it and she was afraid that there would be difficulties if she delayed. Fortunately there had been no alterations in the gown.

Perhaps there is no form that Satan takes oftener than that of a fashionable gown. In that shape he offers women the conquest of the world. But Daphne resisted him and said to Lella: "Get thee behind me, Satan! I'm going to return this gown and let Dutilh give Bayard credit for it. I won't look at another gown till I can pay for it out of my own earnings. I'll not get married till I can buy the rest of my tressouneau myself. I've decided that an independent woman must buy her own tressouneau."

Even in the eyes of ambition this promised to require a fairly long period—a period so lengthy that she wondered if Clay's love would outlast it.

She did love him and the thought of losing him alarmed her more than the thought of losing the precious gown.

Lella woke from her meditation with a sudden "Come along; we must dress for the tea-fight."

After An Operation

Ohio Man Tells How to Gain Strength.

East Liverpool, Ohio.—"After an operation, I was weak, run-down, and slow to recuperate—I was advised to take Vinol, and the results were wonderful. I have a good appetite and sleep fine. I am always glad to tell anyone what Vinol has done for me."

—Joseph Weisner.

There is no secret about Vinol. It owes its success in such cases to beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates, the oldest and most famous body building and strength-creating tonics.

Smith Drug Co. Vinol is sold in Brodhead by W. J. Smith, and Druggists everywhere.

P. S.—Our Saxon Salve is truly wonderful for Eczema. We guarantee it.

Mrs. Kip, senior, amused the young Kips by thinking aloud: "I wonder if that nice Mr. Duane will be at the tea."

"Oh! shame shame!" cried Lella. "It's a regular intrigue. No, he won't be there. Telephone him at the Racquet club and he'll come to you. He's usually there."

She did not see the start the artless hint gave Daphne, who had learned by accident what she had not known how to find out otherwise. Daphne concealed her agitation in the briskness with which she concluded the affair of the Dutilh gown. She folded it up and laid it back in the box as if it were a baby she was about to leave on a doorstep. She kissed it good-by and put the lid over it and tied it up with a crazy combination of strings of various sorts.

Dinner Stories

John Burroughs, the naturalist, was talking about Germany.

"It's dangerous to confabulate with the Germans," he said, "for they're too tricky for us. The Germans are the trickiest people in the world."

A German at a dinner party took in a lady whose name he didn't catch. During the fish course he saw a man who had showed him up the week before in crooked business deal, and he muttered to the lady, ferociously: "Do you see that man to the left of the epergne? Well, if there's one man on earth I hate it's him."

"Why," said the lady, "he's my husband."

"Yes, of course," said the German. "That's why I hate him."

It was in the far south of America. "How's times?" asked the tourist. "Pretty tolerable, stranger," responded the old fellow, who was sitting idly on the stump of a tree. "I had a pile of waist to burn, and the lightning set fire to it and saved me the trouble of burning it."

"That was good."

"I had some trees to cut down, but the cyclone leveled them and saved me the trouble." "Remarkable. But what are you doing now?"

"Waiting for an earthquake to shake the potatoes out of the ground."

In a talk on marriage in Greenwich village, Theodore Dreiser, the novelist, said:

"Old men should never marry young girls."

"Why not?" inquired a critic. "It's like buying books," said Mr. Dreiser, "for your friends to read."

Answers to Questions

What is the purpose of the Christmas Savings Club?

The purpose is to help you and others to accumulate a fund for Christmas (1919).

How does the Christmas Club accomplish this purpose?

By each member paying in a small sum each week for 50 weeks. Ten days before next Christmas (1919) each member will receive the total amount he has paid in and, if payments are made regularly, we add three per cent interest.

Does everybody pay in the same?

No. There are fifteen classes, the payments being made in different ways to suit the convenience of all. These different classes are explained in detail in the Column to the left of this one.

What are the payments in Class 1c?

In the 1c Class Going Up the payments begin with 1c the 1st week and increase 1c each week until you pay 50c the fiftieth week, or if you prefer, you can join the 1c Class Going Down and begin with 50c and end with 1c on the fiftieth week.

Do the payments in the other classes progress in the same way?

They do. The only difference is that in 2c Classes the payments are twice as much, either Going Up or Going Down. And in 5c and 10c Classes the payments are five and ten times as much as in 1c Class.

But in the other Classes the payments are "Uniform," being 10c, 25c, 50c, $1, $2, $2.50 or $5 each week, according to the Class you join.

What do I do to become a member?

All that is necessary is to go to the Rock County Savings & Trust Co., ask to be enrolled as a member and make the first week's payment or more.

Is there a membership fee or is there any cost to join? No.

What will the first payment be?

From 1c to $5.00, according to the class you join. See detail list of payments at left.

How are the payments to be made?

Weekly, on any day during each week or in advance for as many weeks as you desire.

What will happen if I cannot keep up my payments or discontinue?

You may discontinue for any reason at any time; and at the period when the club closes, we will pay you all you have paid in, but without interest.

When and how can I withdraw?

Under no circumstances will any withdrawals, either in whole or in part, be allowed. What you deposit will be held for you until Dec. 12, 1919.

What form of receipt do I get when I make my payments?

We furnish a Card free on which all payments are receipted.

What would happen if my Card were lost, stolen, or destroyed?

MORRIS MILLER

Pete Knisely, former Cub, who played with Huntington during the last year, not only batted second in the International league but let the outfielders without an error in forty-one games. Seven other outfielders and five pitchers also played without a misplay.

Ned Blumh of Cleveland led the first suckers with a fielding average of .992, while Barbare topped the shortstops with the mark of .977, having only five errors in forty games. Blumh started among the catchers with 123 assists. Mulvey, Baltimore outfielder, had twenty-nine assists.

Hampstead and Frazer are keeping their eyes on Lloyd George. If he makes good at Versailles, he may be offered the dictatorship of baseball.

Among the Canadian sportsmen famous for bravery on the field of battle was Lieut. Brown of Brantford, Ontario, who is the proud possessor of a Military Cross which he gained by tackling an enemy paymaster single-handed during the war. He is now a Canadian lines with 3,000 German marks on his person.

Brown first gained fame as a hockey player when a member of the famous "Hawes" team, he won some years ago. He was manager of the International league team at the time prior to his enlistment.

Joe Doyle, the "Babe Ruth" of Great Lakes Naval Training station, has signed a contract with the St. Louis Cardinals, the terms of which call for his services after he is discharged out of the navy. A special contract for him was drawn by the national commission and forwarded to St. Louis.

Doyle is a St. Louis amateur and played first base for the 1st Regiment, 10th Division, one of the strongest clubs on the station. He led the service league in batting, getting a dozen home runs and nine triples during the season. He is only 21 years old, bats and throws right handed and has shown considerable baseball knowledge.

Clarence Rowland, manager of the White Sox, has secured Johnny Conroy, this year's sensation of the Copper Country league, where he played first base and occasionally in the outfield. The signing of Conroy is the first intimation Chicago baseball fans received that "Chick" Gandall may be missing from the White Sox line-up next spring.

In George S. Lyon, the oldest member of the amateur triumvirate in golf, the dominion of Canada has a world's veteran player. John Ball, of Great Britain, is 57 years old; Walter Travis, three times amateur champion of the United States and once British champion, is 58 years old; Lyon recently celebrated his sixtieth birthday. On that occasion the golfers of Canada presented the titleholder with a superb silver service and salver as a token of appreciation.

The Toronto club of the New International league is without a manager. Dan Howley, who resigned a position with Toronto last season, was refused outright a few weeks ago. He didn't receive a word of praise for his clever handling of the team, but was pulled in to secure the position. He thought he ought to feel glad that he finished at the head of a champion ball club. Howley is a young man with a bright future. He should have no trouble in securing the management of some other Class A team.

Running a fast passenger train out of Indianapolis is a well-known pupil. He is Milburn Saylor, the light-weight.

Saylor says: "I'm through with the game of golf and I'm not going to get full satisfaction out of my desire to see what I could do against the champions. I fought in all parts of the world and had a good time while I was at it."

Mr. and Mrs. John Mullen have received word that their son, Francis, who is with the 32nd division, has been home for the holidays.

Lieut. Frank K. Hays of Chicago has been awarded the distinguished service cross for bravery. Lieut. Hays is well known here. He has been in the service since 1914, and is now with his cousins, F. R. Morris and family.

Paul Wilson, who is stationed at Glenburn, Maryland, came Saturday morning to spend a day with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Wilson.

MAGNOLIA

Magnolia, Dec. 25.—Mrs. Steve Wells is visiting her son, Bert Coyne, and family at Janesville, and receiving medical aid.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Letts were Janesville shoppers Saturday.

The pastor of the A. C. church, Rev. W. C. Bird, and family, were "pounded" at the home of Wallace Andrew, Thursday evening.

The members and friends showed their appreciation of his worth in a very substantial way.

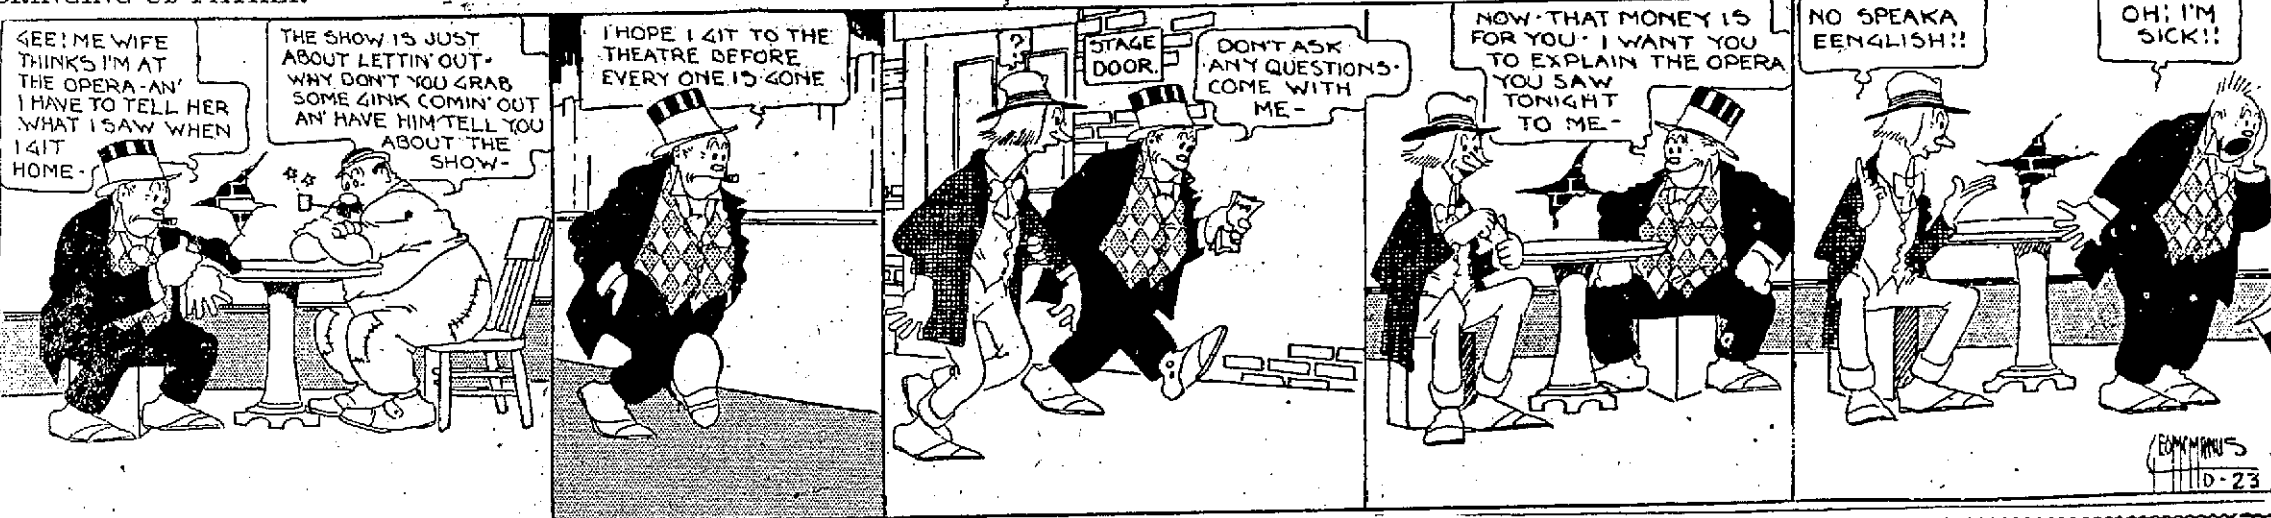

The F. B. Green and sons sale was largely attended with very flattering patronage.

T. M. Harper was a business caller in Footville, Saturday.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Drops Mile Out of Space Into the Sea And Lives To Tell Story of Journey

If you should be taking a ride five thousand eight hundred feet above the earth's surface in a aeroplane and casually start to descend and then drop something over a mile into the Atlantic ocean, how would you feel?

It was only a few years ago we laughed at aerial navigation. Today we simply wonder. We expect the impossibilities but not the improbabilities. We have gone beyond the stage of guess work.

When the news comes that Lieutenant Kenneth Parker, Aerial stunt instructor at the Pensacola Naval Aviation field, took one drop of over a mile into the ocean and came out alive with the mere disfigurements of a broken nose, a few teeth lost in the translocation and a twisted vertebrae, with a few trivial displacements, one wonders what modern science will do next.

As not so many years ago that Jules Verne, the great French imaginative writer described a journey "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," with a mysterious "Captain Nemo" and all read and enjoyed the fiction. Yet during our own day and age the Deutschland made a similar voyage and we ceased guessing. In fact sub sea boats nearly won the war for the Germans.

Later this same writer told a weird tale of a "Trip to the Moon." We enjoyed it and laughed at its absurdity. Today it might be a reality? When Orville Wright and his brother began to solve this "lighter than air navigation problem" the world waited. Today it is one of the elements that have won the war. Our aviators, both naval and otherwise, have worked a marvelous change in modern fighting and now we come back again to this wonderful experience of Lieut. Kenneth Parker.

Lieutenant Parker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Parker of 805 Court street. Between his school terms he has worked in the Parker Pen company. When the war was declared he was a student at Brown University, R. I., assistant football manager and prominent in college affairs. He enlisted in the Rhode Island Naval Reserve, was soon promoted, and saw service in Newport and Providence. Given an opportunity for actual air service, he transferred to the Naval Aviation branch and underwent a severe course of training at the Boston Institute for Technology.

Then he was sent south to complete his flying training at Pensacola, Fla., one of the largest of the Naval Aviation training stations in the United States. He passed all tests and was commissioned Lieutenant and began his preliminary tour duties for service abroad. But unfortunately the armistice was signed and the prospects for the actual "overseas" service was gone. Lieutenant Parker was placed in charge of the training of the younger men in the service and was to teach them the fancy work of the real fighting "Aerial Artists."

Thursday, Dec. 12 he took one of his pupils up to instruct him in the fine arts of a "tail spin," "hurl drop" and other gyrations that air men revel in. Up they went to the height of five thousand eight hundred feet and began the "nose drop," the "aerial spin" and some of the rest of the gyrations loved by aeronauts. Suddenly he turned his machine downward but to use a term familiar to all air men, it was a "gold digger" as he found out at the height of five hundred feet from the earth. Down it plunged and despite all his efforts the "nose" refused to turn upwards and into the ocean it went.

Kipling describes this descent in the verse when he says: "And a drop fell, a drop fell, us straight as a beggar can spit."

Down they went and two hundred yards from the shore they struck the ocean. One mile out of space! Evidently Lieutenant Parker had lost consciousness in that last fifteen hundred feet for he says the water revived him and he was able to release himself from the straps which bound both himself and his comrade to their seats and they rose to the surface.

One mile out of nothing into a bottomless ocean and yet alive to tell the tale.

Few men in the actual fighting service can tell such a tale and few men are alive today to say they dropped a mile from the skies and lived to tell the tale.

The system of gravitation was discovered by the dropping of an apple but Lieutenant Parker broke a new record of Jules Verne or any scientist and proved the one great fact that American air men can rise into the heights of the skies and drop through indefinite space to earth again and live to tell the tale.

A broken nose, a few teeth displaced are nothing to a man who takes a "hop" a dozen times a day, just as the ordinary individual drives his car down town. A "hop" is an ascension in one of those wonderful creations that will revolutionize the world.

Lieut. Parker accomplished the impossible and we are all proud and glad of his wonderful exploit and congratulate both himself and his parents on his escape.

Famous Along Two Lines. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was a doctor before he became famous as the creator of Sherlock Holmes. He followed his profession at Southsea in the eighties, and for his services as commandant of a field hospital in the Boer war he received the thanks of the government.

But Two Added Letters! "Oh, dear!" exclaimed Immogene, who lives with her very strict Aunt Priscilla, "I wonder why it is that puritanical people are nearly always so puritanical!"

MARINE HEAD JUST BACK FROM FRANCE WOULD HAVE WOUNDED KEPT IN SERVICE

Major General and Mrs. George Barnett on the pier just after the docking of the U. S. S. Leviathan.

Major General Barnett, head of the U. S. marine corps, arrived at Hoboken, N. J., when the U. S. S. Leviathan docked the other day. General Barnett returned from an inspection tour in France and his praise of the marines and their excellent service is without limit. He is strong in his belief that the crippled and wounded should be retained in the service. The general was greeted on the pier by his wife, who is seen here standing alongside him.

Evansville News

Evansville, Dec. 23.—"Rich Man, Poor Man," featuring Marguerite Clark and a rich two reel comedy, "Watch Your Neighbor" featuring Max Sennett at Mages Opera House, on Christmas matinee at 2:30 and evening.

Clarence Stiff, who was sent home from France early in November for further medical care and who has been in a hospital in New Jersey, has been transferred to Camp Grant. He was granted a thirty-six hour furlough to visit his mother here, returning to Camp Grant last evening. He enlisted for service when our country entered into the war and our government called for volunteers and was assigned to Company M. Every loyal citizen knows the history of this company, for it contained so many of our Rock county boys. These boys as they return and are able, are sent to Camp Grant for demobilization, and in the case of Clarence he hopes to soon receive an honorable discharge. If his home town looked good to him after a year and seven months of absence, during which time he has been in a foreign land seeing strange scenes, surely the citizens of Evansville were proud to welcome him home again. His battle-scarred face tells the story of his service for his country's honor.

Willis Becker, who has also been returned to the states for hospital treatment, is expected to arrive home from West Baden, Ind., tomorrow noon on a ten-day furlough.

Orfordville News

Orfordville, Dec. 21.—Rev. F. F. Lewis and Dr. F. T. Richards of Janesville were in the village on business on Saturday.

Mrs. M. A. Drew who visited Milton friends during the early part of the week, returned home Friday.

The twin smokestacks at the condensery are in place and presents a very business like appearance. The foundation wall has been laid for the addition that will be built, work on which will begin in a few days.

Ben Shuh the newly appointed station agent has moved his household goods to Orfordville and will settle at once in the Mastine house, south of the track.

Mrs. Otto Gaarder chairman of the Red Cross Christmas Roll Call reported on Saturday afternoon that more than 500 had responded to the call and yet the work is not completed. For a town no larger than Orfordville this is indeed a splendid showing.

Some of the farmers have completed their tobacco stripping and are ready for delivery. A few have delivered a part or whole of their crops. There seems to be more activity in the market again now than for the past few weeks.

Orfordville, Dec. 20.—Sam Simonson of Camp Mead, Maryland, is home on a ten days furlough. He is expected to be mustered out before long.

Ralph Keithley is ill with influenza. His place at the condensery is being filled by a man from Monroe.

The Red Cross met in regular work day session on Friday. On account of sickness and the inclement weather there were but a few present.

Dr. T. W. Nuzum of Janesville was in the village a short time Thursday on professional business.

Charles Long of Beloit is visiting friends here.

One hundred per cent flags are much in evidence in the windows of the village residences and stores. It is expected that by the time the canvass is completed that Orfordville will be over the top, as usual.

Dr. J. W. Keithley of Beloit was in town on professional business Friday.

JOHNSTOWN

Miss Potter, teacher in Dist. No. 1 closed her school two weeks ago and went to her home in the northern part of the state and is not well enough to return.

A Christmas tree and program was given at the school room Dist. No. 3, Friday evening under the training of Miss Marion Peterson. The little band was exceptionally well remembered with gifts from the Christmas tree.

Mrs. C. Craig's guest this week is a sister, Mrs. Margaret Ormore of Milwaukee.

Vera May is the name of the little girl that came to the Hawes home a few days ago.

Nearly every one is through stripping tobacco and in fine shape for delivery.

FRANKLIN CAR

The Logical Choice of Busy People

It is quite noticeable that the Franklin is becoming more and more the favorite of the man or woman who does things.

The reason is simple.

In this car they find an efficiency, a riding comfort, an ease of handling, and a grace of design that are important added features to its remarkable economy—a steady day-by-day delivery of 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline—instead of the usual 10. 10,000 miles to the set of tires—instead of the usual 5,000.

Moreover, men and women of affairs must have a car that is instantly ready for service, and the Franklin Direct Air Cooling System eliminates the possibility of its being frozen into uselessness. The Franklin needn't be coddled—it is always ready to run—whatever the weather.

In crowded city streets or on rough country roads, the Franklin goes on its way lightly, surely, easily—without strain or pounding on its passengers.

A demonstration will prove what we say.

Why malted milk was originated

—because of the impossibility of obtaining good milk at all times and in all places

To the North and South Poles "Horlick's Malted Milk," writes Captain Peary, "was always on the firing line; no field party was dispatched without it, and it never failed to make good promptly and satisfactorily." Captain Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole, writes: "Our way to the pole is littered with boxes stamped 'Horlick's,' giving full evidence of the liberal use made of your splendid Malted Milk." Also taken by Steffansen and the Scott polar expedition.

PREVIOUS to 1883 it was necessary to add milk to all prepared foods for the infant and invalid, in order to make a properly balanced diet. But it was difficult and often impossible to obtain good milk in cities and tropical climates.

The vital problem of how to supply a reliable milk for people of all ages in any climate that would be available at all times, was finally solved by HORLICK of Racine, Wis., U. S. A., years of labor and experiment.

HORLICK discovered a process of reducing fresh milk by careful evaporation in a vacuum to a powder form, which contained all the valuable constituents of fresh milk, would keep indefinitely in any climate, and yet be soluble in hot or cold water.

This was the first time in history that milk was reduced to a powder form, soluble in water, retaining its natural qualities when dissolved, and with all the valuable Vitamines

(which are destroyed by ordinary cooking) preserved intact.

To good rich milk HORLICK added the valuable extract of Malted Barley and Wheat, containing all the nutrition of these grains, and reduced them to a powder form, with permanent keeping qualities, and soluble in water. It was found that by the action of the Malt ferments on the milk, its digestibility was markedly increased over ordinary milk, so as to render it easily assimilated by the weak stomach of the infant, the invalid, and the aged.

This well balanced milk food was thus perfected, which a third of a century's experience has amply proved capable in itself of supporting infant and adult life.

This new milk food HORLICK named Malted Milk; it has proved a boon to thousands upon thousands, from infancy to old age, of every race and clime, and is to be found in every city in the civilized world.

A blessing to the aged Nutrition with digestibility makes Horlick's Malted Milk the ideal food for the aged. Maximum nourishment with a minimum tax on the digestion

In Europe's great war hospitals Large quantities of Horlick's Malted Milk are being used in the war hospital service of the various allied nations, to the alleviation of much suffering. In hospitals all over the world, as well as in the sick room, Horlick's is endorsed and used by the medical profession as a standard diet for invalids and convalescents. Sample package mailed free upon request.

The standard food for babies
Hundreds of thousands of infants, deprived of mother's milk, have been reared on Horlick's to robust childhood. Thousands of photographs and testimonials from all parts of the world are on file in our offices. Sample package mailed free upon request.

Used by thousands of business workers

Walk into any soda fountain anywhere, at noon, and you will see business men and women partaking of Horlick's Malted Milk. More and more, business workers, professional men, and students, are coming to realize how heavy foods at luncheon dull mental alertness and impair efficiency.

Horlick's Malted Milk is also put up in Tablet form. Very convenient for business men, travelers, aviators, ladies when shopping, etc., since a small package, sufficient for a lunch or two, or a day's ration, may be kept on the desk, in the home, or in the pocket.
